

I have some concerns on the pending decision off the FCC to stop regulating broadband service. To me, it sounds like another potential way for the 'big boys' to eliminate competition in the marketplace, especially form those that have built this into a fine country in the past. Have they forgotten their beginnings so easily?